A Celebration of Convict Criminology

DCC Chair's Welcome:

While previous editions of this newsletter have focused on critical issues within our field and visions of the future of Convict Criminology, in this issue we take a moment to reflect on that we have accomplished over the past year. This issue includes our 2023 DCC Award recipients and 2023 Early Career Travel Award recipients, books published by DCC members and publications relevant to Convict Criminology. You will also find a list of our ASC presentations and roundtables. We have had a successful year and we are planning for an even better 2024!

At last year's ASC Executive Board Meeting, the DCC voted to establish a virtual research lab to help foster collaboration. We are making progress with this initiative and hope to launch the lab in 2024. This issue explores the progress we've made on that endeavor.

As we continue to grow and strengthen our division, we need your help! Active member participation is vital to our continued success. If you are interested in joining committees, contributing to this newsletter, or helping us continue to grow, please reach out to me. See you in Philly!

Meet the Editors

Daniel Ryan Kavish, Ph.D. — Southwestern Oklahoma State University

Daniel Ryan Kavish is an Associate Professor of Sociology and Criminal Justice at Southwestern Oklahoma State University and serves as an executive counselor for DCC. In addition to his service for DCC, Dr. Kavish also serves as a core affiliate member of the board for the Carceral Studies Consortium at the University of Oklahoma. His research interests include juvenile delinquency, stigma, masculinity, deviant subcultures, and racial disparities in the criminal justice system.

Dr. Kavish's work has been featured in academic journals such as Crime & Delinquency, Criminal Justice Studies, Contemporary Justice Review, Canadian Journal of Criminology and Criminal Justice, and Qualitative Criminology. Likewise, he is featured in books such as Convict Criminology for the Future and Power and Pain in the Modern Prison: The Society of Captives Revisited. Dr. Kavish hopes that DCC is able to grow as a division of ASC and that Convict Criminology will continue to evolve as a discipline.

Doshie Piper, Ph.D. — University of the Incarnate Word

Dr. Doshie Piper is an Associate Professor of Criminal Justice at the University of the Incarnate Word. A specialist in community corrections, Dr. Piper is particularly interested in the intersection of reintegration and faith community's capacity to deal with reentry challenges. Her courses typically include a service learning component to expose students to the realities of justice work.

As a scholar, Dr. Piper has published research in numerous books, peer-reviewed journals, and newspapers. Her research agenda has primarily been gender specific and responsive. She is currently researching gender in juvenile justice and schools.

Dr. Piper is a member of the American Society of Criminology (ASC) and the Academy of Criminal Justice Sciences (ACJS). She participates within these organizations as a member of multiple sections/divisions and serves as DCC's Treasurer/Secretary. Dr. Piper is also a member of many regional associations and local community organizations such as the Southwestern Association of Criminal Justice (SWACJ) and the San Antonio Police Department Recruitment and Training Advisory Board. Dr. Piper believes that criminal justice policy should reflect a commitment to providing opportunities for redemption and forgiveness.

A Letter from the Chair

Hello DCC Members!

I write this letter with a strong sense of pride in all that we have accomplished. Although the DCC is in its infancy, we are thriving! My proudest accomplishment is the Early Career Travel Scholarships. We currently have funding to continue our scholarship program for one additional year (2024). I am working to develop a fund-raising plan to ensure the longevity of this program. However, based on our membership numbers for 2023, we could replenish the fund annually if every member donated just $10 per year! If you are financially able to contribute, please do so. Thank you to all those who have contributed to this fund already. Your generosity has allowed us to increase our presence and support early career scholars. Thank you on behalf of the DCC Executive Board.

Our mentorship program was successfully launched in 2022 with much success. This program has allowed for one-on-one mentorship for our members during both graduate school and early career academic positions. A special thank you to Dr. Alison Cox and Dr. Bree Boppre who coordinated the Mentoring Program in 2022-2023 and have graciously offered to continue in 2023-2024. If you are interested in participating in this program, click here to submit an application! Deadline is October 30th!

As we look ahead to 2024, the future brings the promise of continued growth. The DCC intends to launch our virtual research lab in 2024! Be on the lookout for information on this initiative in early 2024. Moreover, 2024 is an election year for the DCC. I encourage all members to consider running for the Executive Board. You will receive a call for nominations in the spring.

Lastly, I encourage all members to increase their involvement with the DCC. In January, we will begin planning for the 2024 ASC Conference in San Francisco. If you are interested in helping with panel development, event organizing, or the awards and scholarship committees, please contact me directly.

See you in Philly!

Special Issue of Journal of Prisoners on Prisons: “Twenty-Five Years of Convict Criminology”

Please check out our hot off the press special issue from the official journal of Convict Criminology, the Journal of Prisoners on Prisons, titled “Twenty-Five Years of Convict Criminology.” In the last 25 years, the social climate within the United States and globally has shifted and changed in many different ways. Within the world of system-affected people, while some progress has been made, we still face oppression. Many of our conversations have changed, and many issues have remained unresolved. Yet, a social movement has begun, a movement of System Affected Academics (Tietjen, forthcoming), and Convict Criminology (CC) is part of this larger movement. The advocacy, activism, and activist-scholarship of system affected groups affiliated with higher education are impacting change, and we are taking seats at the tables of justice policy organizations. Yet, more importantly, system affected academics are building their own table, in creating their own structures and networks of systemic change. In other words, by engaging in transformative social justice, purposive efforts of inclusion, and activism, we are building a new table as part of a larger social movement.

The Journal of Prisoners on Prisons is an open-access journal. Since 1988, the Journal of Prisoners on Prisons (JPP) has been a prisoner written, academically oriented and peer reviewed, non-profit journal, based on the tradition of the penal press. It brings the knowledge produced by prison writers together with academic arguments to enlighten public discourse about the current state of carceral institutions.

DIVISION OF CONVICT CRIMINOLOGY

The Division of Convict Criminology (DCC) invites nominations for 2024 Awards

John Keith Irwin Distinguished Scholar Award (Nomination Deadline: August 1, 2024)

This award recognizes sustained outstanding professional contributions by an individual to the study of Convict Criminology. Scholarly contributions may be empirical or theoretical. Professional contributions also include advocating for Convict Criminology as an area of scholarship within criminology and related disciplines and mentoring graduate students. Persons who have made substantial practical contributions to insider perspectives of criminal and deviant behavior also are eligible to receive this award. The committee may elect not to give this award in any given year.

- In 1967, John Keith Irwin founded Project Rebound, a program which helps those coming out of prison go to college. Irwin co-founded the Prisoners Union in 1971, which organized inmates to push for their civil rights and worked closely with the California legislature on the Uniform Sentencing Act passed in 1976. In 1985, he received the August Vollmer award from the American Society of Criminology. At a panel presentation at the American Society of Criminology's annual conference in 1997, Irwin encouraged the establishment of the Convict Criminology group, a collective of formerly-incarcerated individuals who became professors that critically examine the carceral system.

Frank Tannenbaum Outstanding Book Award (Nomination Deadline: August, 1 2024)

This award recognizes outstanding scholarship in a monograph or textbook within Convict Criminology. Books published within three years of the award are eligible for consideration. The committee may elect not to give this award in any given year.

- Frank Tannenbaum is unofficially considered by many scholars to be the first "convict criminologist" in the United States. His book, Wall Shadows: A Study in American Prisons, was one of the earliest narrative accounts of incarceration experiences in criminology. In 1931, he reported to the Wickersham Commission study on Penal Institutions, Probation and Parole. He taught criminology at Cornell University. His conception of the "Dramatization of Evil" led to the further development of labeling theory.

Early Career Award (Nomination Deadline: August 1, 2024)

This award recognizes outstanding contributions to Convict Criminology scholarship by persons early in their professional careers. To be eligible for this award, an individual must have received his or her terminal degree no more than eight years before the year of the award and have developed a strong research agenda in Convict Criminology since the time of the terminal degree as indicated by regular publications. The committee may elect not to give this award in any given year.

Outstanding Article or Book Chapter Award (Nomination Deadline: August 1, 2024)

This award recognizes outstanding scholarship in the form of an article or book chapter in Convict Criminology. Articles or chapters published within three years of the award are eligible for consideration. The committee may elect not to give this award in any given year.

Student Paper Award (Nomination Deadline: August 1, 2024)

The Student Paper Award recognizes scholarly work of students in Convict Criminology. Students working by themselves or as part of a team of co-authors who are currently enrolled in an academic program or a recent graduate of such a program (no more than two years removed from the year of the award) at either the undergraduate or graduate level are eligible for the competition. Paper submissions may be conceptual, theoretical, and/or empirical (quantitative or qualitative) and must be a completed project directly related to Convict Criminology. Papers must be the work of one or more students but should not be co-authored with a faculty member, though a review and endorsement by a faculty member of the student's choice is required for submission. The committee may elect not to give this award in any given year.

Outstanding Teacher Award (Nomination Deadline: August 1, 2024)

The Outstanding Teacher Award recognizes contributions that have made a significant impact on the teaching of convict criminology at the local, state, regional, national, or international level. These contributions may include a) exemplary classroom teaching and/or student engagement activities, b) leadership and innovation in teaching developments such as the preparation of teaching and curriculum-related materials and publications, c) contributions to the scholarship on teaching and learning, and/or d) contributions to the enhancement of teaching within state, regional or national associations. To be clear, this award is available to any teacher, and not just faculty teaching at institutions of higher education. The committee may elect not to give this award in any given year.

Outstanding Mentor Award (Nomination Deadline: August 1, 2024)

The Outstanding Mentor Award is designed to recognize excellence in mentorship. Nominations of individuals at all stages of their academic careers are encouraged. Nonstudent members may be nominated by colleagues, peers, or students but self-nominations are not allowed. A detailed letter of nomination should contain concrete examples and evidence of how the nominee has sustained a record of enriching the professional lives of others. The letter of nomination should specify the ways the nominee has gone beyond his/her role as a professor, researcher, or collaborator to ensure successful enculturation into the discipline of Criminology and Criminal Justice, providing intellectual professional development outside of the classroom, and otherwise exemplary support for undergraduates, graduates, post-graduates, and/or currently incarcerated students. If relevant, then be sure the letter specifically highlights mentorship involving justice-impacted undergraduates, graduates, post-graduates, and/or currently incarcerated students. Award decisions will be based on the strength of the nominee's qualifications and not on the number of endorsements for any particular candidate. The committee may elect not to give this award in any given year.

Requirements/Deadlines/Procedures:

- Nominations may be submitted by DCC and non-DCC members.
- More details available on DCC's website: <https://www.concrim.org/awards>
- Self-nominations are welcomed and encouraged for all awards other than the Outstanding Mentor Award.

Selection Criteria:

The nominees are evaluated by the awards committee based on their scholarly work, their commitment to Convict Criminology as a research discipline, and their commitment to Convict Criminology as advocates, particularly in terms of dedication to the Division of Convict Criminology.

Nomination Materials:

In submitting your nomination, please provide the following supporting materials in PDF format: (1) A letter evaluating the nominee's contribution and its relevance to the award; (2) The nominee's C.V. (short version preferred).

Please submit nominations and any supporting materials in PDF format by August 1, 2024 to:

Intersectionality in Convict Criminology: Voices from Within

Editors: J. Renee Trombley, Doshie Piper, and Alison Cox

Please consider submitting a reading to Intersectionality in Convict Criminology: Voices from Within, a Taylor & Francis Group edited volume.

This text presents a variety of chapters written by a diverse group of academics, practitioners, and students in criminal justice, criminology, and related disciplines who are directly impacted by the criminal legal system. This scholarship aims to examine various issues within criminal justice and criminology. Utilizing the theoretical perspective of convict criminology, it explores how, as academics, our teaching, research, and service are often driven and shaped by our lived experiences and heavily influence our worldview. More importantly, this collection purposefully utilizes intersectionality to center the voices and experiences of women, people of color, and other marginalized populations who have always been present in convict criminology but have traditionally lacked focus.

A variety of formats could qualify for this edited volume. Personal stories, autoethnography, or other creative writing that expresses how being multiply marginalized by the criminal legal system and other systems of oppression have impacted your identity and/or work are encouraged. These discussions, based on reflexivity and how experiences with the justice system have shaped your teaching and research, are of particular importance for this text.

These submissions should be formatted using APA guidelines. Word count for submissions is open but should fall between approximately 2,000 to 6,000 words.
